To Whomsoever It May Concern

Ms. Anjali Dutt has been part of the National Museum's Lecturing and Education Department through her voluntary association. She has been associated with the National Museum and more specially the Lecturing and Education Department in the capacity of a volunteer.

As a young and an energetic museum goer, Anjali has volunteered for all learning oriented programmes offered during the block buster exhibition "India and the world: A history in nine stories" and as well as for National Museum's annual summer programme 'Playtime at National Museum'.

She has a good demeanour and is able to interact with all types of museum visitors/ participants. Her zeal to interact and learn was evident during all the workshops.

I believe she is somebody who is passionate towards her area of interest, and can contribute very effectively to the same with all sincerity.

My best wishes for all her future endeavours.
