About the Journal

Women's Link is a bi-annual peer reviewed journal that focuses on gender issues from a broad spectrum. Its basic intention is to create awareness and disseminate information about the present situation of women especially the dalits, tribals, minorities and their perceptions. Meaningful participation of women in all walks of life would become possible only if they have access to information. To facilitate this, it is imperative to bridge the information gap that exists at present and this journal has been an attempt to fulfill this need.

This journal is academic in nature and works to raise consciousness about the importance of, and viable strategies related to the process of women's empowerment, providing an interactive platform for academicians, grassroots activists, students and other civil society agents to know about the struggles to build solidarity and to exchange experiences, activities and interventions. It reaches diverse segments of society with valuable insights on specific women's issues and has widespread acceptability from its readers and contributors.

Women's Link carries articles on women's lives from all dimensions i.e. rights, violence, religious laws and ideological set-up, education, health, participation in economic, political and social life, impact of science and technology and the implications of privatization, globalization and liberalization. The compendium of articles attempts to broad base and delineate the framework of analysis in the hope of evolving a perspective to understand the position of women in today's society.

Initially, the journal, a quarterly, was brought out by Indian Social Institute and then in April 2017 it was taken over by the Sarojini Naidu Centre for Women Studies, JMI till July-August 2020 and then shifted to the Department of English, JMI. The first bi-annual issue (Jan 2021) has already been published.
